AMP PARTNERS ON $30 BILLION FBI IT Triple S CONTRACT General Dynamics Selects AMP to Provide Services on Contract Award

(Tampa, FL) January 17, 2011 - Advanced MarketPlace (www.AdvancedMarketPlace.com), a leading national provider of IT Service Desk, IT Asset Management, and Endpoint Management solutions, has been selected to be part of General Dynamics Information Technology, a business unit of General Dynamics (GD), team for the recently awarded FBI $30 billion Information Technology Supplies and Support Services (ITSSS) contract.

The indefinite-delivery, indefinite-quantity FBI IT Triple S contract, the largest in the Bureau's history, is available for use throughout the Justice Department with a $30 billion ceiling, the FBI announcement said. AMP partnered with General Dynamics, who is one of 46 prime contractors named. This contract will provide the FBI a vehicle through which it and all agencies within the US Department of Justice may procure information technology-related goods and services over the next eight years.

"AMP is extremely proud to be included in this historic contract and to be of service to our nation by technology services to the U.S. Department of Justice," says Matthew Peeples, President of AMP.

"Mission requirements rely on dependable, efficient and rapid communications systems and IT networks to disseminate intelligence, collaborate with key partners, perform research and analysis, warehouse evidence and critical information, investigate threats and conduct operations," General Dynamics Information Technology's vice president and general manager of Civilian Solutions sector, Ivan Abbott said.

The services AMP can provide via General Dynamics include hardware and software operations and maintenance, server maintenance, hardware configuration, database management, critical infrastructure protection, network security and risk and vulnerability management.
